LAST YEAR'S MARK IS ECLIPSED BY THE CHARITY BALL

For Attendance, Decoration and Beauty This Year's Event Exceeds Past Successes

FANCY DANCING IS PLEASING

Professional Exhibition and Solos by Miss Hickisch Delight on Early Program

GRAND MARCH FILLS THE FLOOR

Many Attractive and Unusual Gowns Are Displayed by the Guests

With the rendition by the orchestra of "Home Sweet Home" at one o'clock this morning, La Crosse's 1915 Charity Ball passed into history as one of the most memorable in the annals of this event. Although figures are necessarily incomplete at this time, it was stated last night by Mrs. A. Hirschheimer, chairman of the ticket committee, that the sum realized this year for the La Crosse Hospital Association for use in its charity work will exceed that of last year by a considerable margin.

Excels Past Successes

Among those who have regularly attended the Charity Ball it was the consensus of opinion that in attendance, in beauty of decoration, in attractive gowns and charming people the ball this year excelled any that had preceded it.

The opening program was met with eager applause from the dancers and from the spectators who crowded the gallery, which was filled long before the Edythe Andre orchestra, directed by Professor John Andre, struck into the opening number, a selection from "The Bohemian Girl." Throughout the evening the orchestra won approving comment.

Dancers Please

The fancy dancing by Miss Alice Naffz of Madison, and Mr. D. J. Sullivan, of New York, proved a pleasing innovation. The couple ably performed three dances, the Pavlow Gavotte, the Ta Tao Chinese dance and the maxixe. Miss Hickisch, accompanied on the piano by Mr. F. E. Redhead, added to her laurels in two songs, "The Language of Love," from "The Country Girl," and "The Song of the Soul," from "The Cliffs." The latter, sung as an encore, afforded Miss Hickisch an excellent vehicle for her wonderful voice and was received with high favor.

The program moved forward with precision and at nine o'clock, to the bugle call of a cornet, the dancers formed on for the grand march, the participants in which were so numerous that the figures filled the entire hall. With Mr. Stanley Gordon and Miss Laura Cunningham at their head a group of leaders composed of Messrs. and Mesdames Leigh Toland, Samuel Fellows, D. G. MacMillan, Joseph M. Hixon, Andrew Lees and Alec Paul proceeded up the center of the ballroom from the main entrance to the wooded garden that served as the orchestra, from there evolving into the successive figures of the march. Their appearance was greeted with a burst of applause in the gallery, and the spectacle which they presented will long be a pleasant memory in the minds of those who witnessed it. From the conclusion of the final figure the marchers floated away to the measures of a waltz into which the orchestra glided without any apparent break in the harmony.

Oasis in Garden

If there can be such a thing as an oasis in a garden one might so picture the spot surrounding the punch bowl over which Mesdames G. Van Steenwyk and John Brindley presided in the punch room. The decorations here were attractive, chrysanthemums and smilax predominating, and in the warmth of the Indian summer evening the dancers made the room a popular retreat.

Refreshments were served in the dining room in the basement of Germania, consisting of an excellent salad, sandwiches, pickles, ice cream, cake and coffee. Here over a gate of pink ribbon Mrs. E. E. Dok kept watch, admitting the dancers only as they could be accommodated at the tables, and the supper was presided over by Mesdames Arthur Escherson and Charles H. Sherman and the Misses Helen Dorset and Mary Crosby.

HYPHEN'S STRENGTH PRINCIPAL POINT IN NATURALIZING QUIZ

Federal Examiner Makes Applicants Tell Where His Loyalty Would Be in Case of War

ONE SAYS HE'S NEUTRALIZED

Thirteen of Fifteen Applicants Are Admitted to American Citizenship

Questions concerning the strength of the "hyphen" which connected them with their native lands played a prominent part in the questioning of Federal Naturalization Examiner M. J. Kilsdonk in circuit court this morning. Kilsdonk examined fifteen applicants. Thirteen were admitted to citizenship.

Makes Issue of Loyalty

"Would you have any inclination toward the land of your birth in case of war with the United States?" was one of the questions most frequently asked by the federal examiner. He insisted upon definite answers to the question, and demanded of each applicant a proper knowledge of the American government and lawmaking system.

There was a ripple of laughter in the court when a sponsor for one of the applicants, himself being examined as to whether he were native-born or a citizen by adoption, declared:

"I was neutralized."

Knobloch Must Try Again

Joseph Knobloch, German, could not give any idea of how the state of Wisconsin nor the United States made laws. He said he had no idea of what the state legislature was for and did not know how long governors and presidents served. He was instructed by Judge Higbee to study and reapply at the next term of circuit court.

Emil Herman Stretlow, German, was admitted to citizenship only after a ten minute grilling in which he failed to answer the majority of the questions put to him. Stretlow's application was continued from the last term of court on account of his lack of knowledge of government.

The New Americans

Those admitted to citizenship were Christ Johnson, Danish; Emil Herman Stretlow, German; Jacob Fuchs, German; Joseph Gegenfuerst, German; Frank Joseph Malin, Swiss; Joseph Jacob Fuchsteiner, German; John Christian, German; Jacob Zimmer, German; Carl Engler, German; Anton Hesseberg, Swedish; Terkel Knudsen, Norwegian; Mathias Johnson, Norwegian; and Sever Lars Simonson, Norwegian.

IBSEN CLUB PLANS BAZAAR TO CREATE FUND FOR SUPPORT OF THE Y. W. C. A.

A benefit bazaar, the proceeds to be a fund for the Young Women's Christian association, will be held by the Ibsen club at the Y. W. C. A. home, Fourth and Cass streets, Friday, Nov. 12.

Aprons and fancy work, produced by the clubwomen, will be on sale, the array representing some of the very finest workmanship in the city, as well as many useful articles, and an exceptional opportunity is presented for the purchase of Christmas presents as well as articles for home use.

Mrs. Adolph Gunderson, president of the Ibsen club, makes on behalf of the Y. W. C. A. an earnest appeal to women who have prepared articles suitable for the sale to donate them to the bazaar and thus swell the stock in trade.

This is the first undertaking devoted to relieving the financial burden which threatens to compel the abandonment of the Y. W. C. A. home, and for it the officers of the Ibsen club and the directors of the Y. W. C. A. bespeak the support of all citizens who are interested in the retention of this most useful institution.

KELLY OBJECTS WHEN POLICEMAN ATTEMPTS TO PUT HIM TO BED

When Wild Bill stepped out of the railroad station in New York, bristling with artillery, a policeman gently accosted him and requested him to walk over to the police station. Bill looked at the officer.

"Go get help," said he. The officer brought another.

"Go get more help," said Bill. The officer blew a whistle. Two came a-running.

"You need more help," said the western wild man. Then they called a platoon of reserves and—Wild Bill went to the station.

John Kelly, six feet odd of brawny Lansing, Iowa, farmer, didn't want to go to bed last night. But Patrolman Gus Koschnitzke was firm. And so today there is a mused up bedroom at Kelly's sister's home on Rose street, and the police court is richer by $25 and costs, some part of which will go to re-attaching Koschnitzke's ear to his head.

"Twas a beautiful argument that the movies missed. Persuasion and wrestling got Kelly to his sister's home, but when it came to being put to bed, he balked. And then he clinched with Koschnitzke, who is not so large as some, but has clear ideas of his duty. The policeman hung on for twenty minutes while the 200-pound Lansingite ripped things up—including Koschnitzke's ear. The battle was won when Kelly's sister arrived with reinforcements in the shape of a rope with which she tied his wildly lashing feet. And then Koschnitzke sat on his chest until the reserves arrived with the automobile, and took him to Central station.

"Guilty, I guess," Kelly answered when the court put the question, this morning. He paid his fine from a roll with two hundred dollars or so in it.

SCORE MISSING IN FACTORY FIRE THIRTEEN DEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Thirteen persons are known to be dead and the death total may run above a score in the fire that swept a four-story factory building in Brooklyn this afternoon. The injured number between 25 and 40.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—More than a score of girls and women are missing and unaccounted for in a spectacular fire that swept rapidly through a four story factory building at 385 North Sixth street, in Brooklyn this afternoon.

A great crowd collected about the burning building. In the confusion the police had wildly differing reports of the number of dead. It is believed that death list will be large.

MISSING LAUNCH FOUND NEAR ALMA

Wabasha Man's Motor-boat for Which Search Was Made Here Is Located Where Abandoned

A launch belonging to Henry Schwede, stolen mysteriously about three weeks ago at Wabasha, was found yesterday in a slough near Alma, where it had been abandoned. The craft was found by Paul Schrader of Alma, while hunting.

Search Is Genuine

The discovery of the launch ends a vigil that has been participated in by farmers and others along the river the entire distance from La Crosse to Wabasha. For nights the river and railroad bridges were patrolled and searching parties were sent out.

KITCHENER GOES TO TAKE COMMAND IN BALKANS IS GUESS

Belief Is He Will Not Return to Resume His Place at the War Office

RESIGNATION IS REFUSED?

The Globe Asserts King George Declined to Accept Quitting of Post

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The police this afternoon raided the offices of the Globe and seized the copies of the paper of yesterday and today. The plant was also seized.

The authorities acted presumably because of the article appearing in the Globe today, containing a bitter attack on Lord Haldane and declaring Kitchener had offered his resignation which was declined. The Globe said the appointment of Lord Haldane to succeed Lord Kitchener would "jeopardize the life of the government."

Official admission was made here tonight that Lord Kitchener has gone to the Balkans. It was stated that "at the request of his colleagues Lord Kitchener has left for a short visit to the eastern theater of war."

The official statement was considered tantamount to a declaration that Lord Kitchener is to take command of the allies' operations in the new war theater.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Lord Kitchener has gone to the near east to take command of the allied forces in the Balkans, according to the most frequent guess made here this afternoon.

Few believe he will return to the war office.

That he handed his resignation to King George but that it was refused is unqualifiedly asserted by the Globe.

"There is an unpleasant obscurity about the whole business," said the Globe. "Lord Haldane is credited with the conviction that he could fill the war office post adequately, but we most sincerely trust the premier will not commit such an irremediable error as to give it to him, which would instantly jeopardize the life of the government."

Haldane, who was lord high chancellor in the liberal cabinet which preceded the present coalition ministry, was dropped out when the reorganization was effected because the public considered him pro-German.

Lord Derby, author of the scheme for stimulating voluntary army enlistments as an alternative to conscription, is favored in some quarters for Kitchener's place.

JUDGE INSISTS ON ALIMONY BEFORE GIVING DIVORCE

Wife Waives Money but Higbee Insists Husband Must Pay $20 a Month

Mrs. Lillian Klaus did not ask for alimony in her suit for divorce from Hendrix Klaus, but she got it in circuit court this morning.

"Klaus must be made to pay for the keep of his three children," Judge Higbee said. "I will not grant the divorce unless I give Mrs. Klaus alimony, and I will further see that it is paid to her."

Judge Higbee ordered that Klaus pay the woman $20 each month and also $30 attorney's fees. Mrs. Klaus showed that her husband had treated her cruelly. She will reside with a relative in the west.

LOSSES PLACED AT 100,000

GREEK MONARCH FLIES IN THE FACE OF THE PEOPLE

Constantine Risks Revolution By Resolving to Retain Zaimus as His Premier

TRIES TO APPEASE VENIZELOS

Plan to Get Two of War Party Into Cabinet, But to Keep Power to Zaimis

LONDON, Nov. 6.—King Constantine of Greece has risked revolution to avoid going to war.

Premier Zaimis, head of the Greek "neutrality cabinet," is to remain in office, a dispatch from Athens stated today. Parliament will be dissolved the message said.

Zaimis will try to reconstruct his ministry. Its old members will be retained, the Athens message stated, but two new ones will be added. It is taken for granted that these will be representatives of the war party. Probably one of them will be ex-Premier Venizelos, the party's leader, if he can be persuaded to accept.

That he will do so is considered very doubtful, however. In fact, it is questioned if any men at all prominent in the pro-war group will consent to take portfolios under Zaimis.

Tries to Satisfy War Party

The king's plan is to endeavor to satisfy the war element by giving it ministerial representation but to deprive it of any real power by keeping it in a hopeless minority in the cabinet.

When the "neutrality ministry" was out-voted by the pro-war deputies in parliament early Friday it became necessary immediately for his majesty to make the pro-war leader, Venizelos, his premier again. By the latter course, even though the war party should win the ensuing election, it was possible for him to gain at least two months. In fact, the prospects are that he will gain considerably more than this because, the army being mobilized, there must be unusual delay.

Hopes to Gain Time

The king is believed to have thought the crisis will be past by the time the election can be held, so that a pro-war victory, should it be won, will be too late to accomplish anything it now wishes to do. King Constantine and the war leaders had disagreed Friday for the first time, it is conceded, that his majesty would have been entitled to dissolve parliament as a necessary preliminary to a vote to determine whether the people favored his own neutrality party or demanded war. The first disagreement, however, was six months ago, when Venizelos was premier.

Because the king opposed war Venizelos went out of office. There was an election and the Venizelos war party won. He resigned again a month ago as a result of the king's continued adherence to neutrality, but did not immediately precipitate a crisis, permitting Zaimis to take the premiership and hold it until the parliamentary vote this week. Then he marshalled his forces and passed a vote of lack of confidence in the Zaimis administration.

This time he declared the king was not entitled to a referendum—he had already had one and the decision was against him. The view is held here, that, inasmuch as Venizelos unquestionably is technically right and proved by an election that a majority of Greeks support him, King Constantine is endangering his throne by his defiance of the constitution and his people's wishes.

TEUTONS ADVANCE NEARER CITY DOWN THE MORAVA VALLEY

Austro-Germans Need Only Short Stretch of Railroad to Complete Way Across Serbia

MONTENEGRINS ARE TENACIOUS

Mountaineers Cause Austrians Much Trouble After Becoming Rooted In the Hills

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 6.—The Bulgarians and Austro-Germans today effected a junction of their main lines at Krivivir, Serbia.

BERLIN, via Sayville wireless, Nov. 6.—The Bulgarians have captured Nish, the war office announced today.

The Serb capital's fall followed three days of strenuous fighting, said the report.

Pushing down the Morava valley toward Nish from the northward, the Germans have taken Varvarin, fifteen miles nearer to their goal than Paracin, which was reported captured Friday and only thirty-five miles from Nish itself.

This leaves only the 35-mile stretch referred to unaccounted for to complete a through rail connection completely across Serbia, since the Bulgarians hold the line from Nish southeastward to the frontier.

Though there may be Serbians between Varvarin and Nish, it was considered certain here that they must already be doing their utmost to escape to the westward from between the closing jaws of the German-Bulgar trap, so that rail communication from Germany to Constantinople is deemed a matter only of hours.

The German left wing is already in fighting touch with the Bulgarians near Krivivir. Kraljevo has been taken by the German forces.

Montenegrins Fight Hard

VIENNA, via Berlin, Amsterdam and London, Nov. 6.—Vigorous attempts to crush the Montenegrins were reported in the official statement issued here today.

The mountaineers are admittedly fighting so desperately as to be a hard proposition even for the Austrians numerically superior forces. Early in the war, while Austria was preoccupied with struggles in other fields, they gained a foothold in places on the Austrian side of the frontier and from these positions great difficulty is being experienced in dislodging them. They are able to get supplies of ammunition by sea and the mountainous country favors them and robs the Austrians of a large part of the advantage they would enjoy from their heavy artillery.

Bulgars Routed at Prilep

PARIS, Nov. 6.—French infantry and British cavalry helped the Serbs to rout the Bulgarians in the Prilep region in Serbia, the war office reported today.

The allies' victory was declared to have brought the Bulgar attempt to overrun Macedonia to a decisive close for the present.

The Bulgarians, advancing along the Velez-Prilep road, were at Isvor where the Serbs sallied through Babuna Pass, a defile through the range which protects Prilep and attacked them.

Collect Pennies To Wire Cheers To Sputh's Men

Normal rooters do not allow a mere matter of mileage to cut them off from communication with their team. A large bread mixer was pressed into service at the school yesterday for the purpose of collecting pennies, that a message might be sent to the team today for encouragement. The clinks of the pennies came thick and fast, so fast that a long message and perhaps words of encouragement to individual players will be sent to Dr. Sputh in order that he may read them between halves.

ONLY A ROSE

BY DOROTHY BLACKMORE

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
She stood poised in the doorway of the long library.

"Nunky," she called softly to the man seated among a litter of manuscripts, "how do you like my gown?" Paul Kennard looked up and at his ward. She looked like nothing so much as a gray dove fluttering there in the doorway. She had reached her eighteenth birthday, but her golden curls were still tied at the nape of her neck. Her coloring was dainty and accentuated by the deep crimson of her lips; lips so crimson that not for the first time Kennard realized that the hearts of men would be set to beating by the lure in Nancy Vale. A second later his arms were extended.

"You do like it—then?" Nancy questioned from the depths of his arms. She reached out and extracted a solitary pink rose that had lent its beauty to his writing table. "I think I need this in my hair," she said, and tucked the flower among the riot of golden curls. After his smile of approval she skipped off, it was quite time for the first gown to arrive for her coming out party.

Kennard watched her go and sighed a trifle wearily. He wished that he did not have to join the crowd of friends who were coming to welcome his ward into the world of society. His story, the one lying beside him, was progressing satisfactorily. He wanted to finish it before daylight.

Paul Kennard was old beyond his thirty-five years in that he had, at the age of twenty-one, gone through a frightful train wreck which left him mentally aged and physically lame. The horror and suffering he had witnessed in those few appalling hours robbed him forever of the sense of youth. His life since that time had been devoted to acts of human kindness and the pursuit of literature.

At 25, his closest friend, older by many years than Kennard, had died, leaving a slim, delicate girl orphaned and oddly alone in the world. Nancy Vale, the beautiful maiden who had captured the rose from his writing table to put among her golden curls, was that orphaned girl. Kennard had adopted her because Vale had left her to him.

"I am going to join her mother," Vale had said a few days before his death. "Take care of her, Paul. Nancy and I will try to help you from the other world—if such a thing is possible."

So Paul Kennard had been "Nunky" to Nancy Vale for ten years—ten years that had been filled with complete joy both to the growing girl and the lame, thoughtful Kennard.

"Some man will get a treasure," he often told himself, and as she flitted out of the doorway ready to enter that world of men he prayed that the lucky one might be worthy, clean and upright. After that Kennard became engrossed in his story.

The doorbell rang many times and men and women flocked into the great Kennard drawing room where Nancy, looking not more than 15 in her simple gray frock, welcomed her guests. Often her big eyes glanced swiftly at the stairs leading from the library, but each time they returned to smiles and laughter with a hint of wistfulness growing in their clear depths. "Nunky" was so absorbed in his story as to forget that he had promised to come in and join her party. Nancy, too, was wise beyond her years, otherwise she would have rushed tearfully into the great library and dragged Paul Kennard to the fulfillment of his promise. But if his happiness lay in the solitude and silence of the writer's den then that solitude was not going to be broken if Nancy could help it.

Inside the drawing room, she was breaking her heart because she had been forgotten by her guardian. Her smiles were radiant and she shyly accepted the homage offered her from the masculine element, an homage that promised a rich harvest of hearts for Nancy's market.

It was not until silence reigned again in the great house and a small pink rose drooped wearily in Nancy's curls that she tipped softly to the library door. The quiet of that room told her that the story was finished and that "Nunky" was smoking the restful cigarette that always followed the completion of a good day's work.

"May I come in?" she questioned, already over the threshold.

Kennard opened wide his eyes. The gray flock flung his guilt before him. It had been Nancy's party night and he had forgotten it. She was still a child in his eyes and he waited for the outburst of hurt childhood.

"I just wanted to say good night," she said softly, and stroked back the lock of snow white hair that lay across Kennard's broad forehead.

"You grow more like your father every day," he said in quick appreciation of her instinctive understanding. "He was the most unselfish and considerate man that ever walked the earth. I'm sorry, kiddie, that your old uncle forgot the coming-out party. I could only have limped about trying vainly to banish my hero and his woes from my mind. I will get you another string of those beads."

"Beads! How dare you call my matchless pink pearls beads!" She touched the exquisite present from him that clasped her slender neck. She looked anxiously at him. "You won't sit up any longer will you—it's late now?"

"Only till the cigarette puffs out," he told her and watched her skip off and up to her room.

Kennard sat for a few moments warily looking at the door through which his ward had gone. Gradually his eye focused themselves on a faded pink flower that lay just within the library door. It was the rose Nancy had worn in her hair.

Kennard rose and picked it up and returned to his desk with it. He sat gazing softly, tenderly, at it and, a second later, his lips caressed it tenderly.

No sooner had he touched the withered flower than he drew back swiftly. The meaning of his action went over him like a flame of fire.

"God!" he cried in terror at his own emotion. "Not that! Surely not that—she's only a child!" He sat stunned. A few minutes later his head went forward on his arms and the rose was again against his lips.

Nancy, creeping softly down the stairs, tried to stifle the beating of her heart when she glanced swiftly at the floor just within the library door. There was no rose lying there. She stood for a moment, her great eyes devouring Kennard's bent shoulders and bowed head. The very softest sigh escaped her and Kennard raised his eyes slowly, believing a splendid vision had appeared to him.

Surely the slim little creature in the doorway was not Nancy. There was golden hair piled high and bound by the matchless pink pearls and a white throat rose like the stem of a lily from a low-cut bodice. The arms were bare and gleaming white.

It was a woman who stood in the doorway and not the child Nancy. It was the incarnation of the dream woman who had come to Kennard from the scent of the rose. He would have risen, but Nancy fluttered quickly over to him.

"This is the new gown aunty bought for me," she explained swiftly, her words hysterically broken. She had seen the crushed rose under Kennard's hand. Her eyes were like stars and her body was trembling with elation. It was unbelievable, this wonderful thing that had happened. Paul Kennard loved her!

He brushed his eyes dazedly. He dared scarcely to look at Nancy so great was his longing for her. Her suddenly-revealed womanly beauty had made him weak.

"The gown is lovely," he said

feebly, trying to speak in the old way. "But run up to your bedkiddie—it's time little girls were asleep."

"It's time little girls were grown up," Nancy said. And the subtle note of womanhood had entered her voice. She drew close to Kennard and her gleaming arms twined up and about his neck. "If you won't tell me you love me," she said—and there was a sob in her voice—I don't want to live."

Kennard's arms closed about her swiftly, hungrily.

A rose lay on the desk—the pink rose she had worn in her hair.

HISTORY SOCIETY OF TREMPPEALEAU HAS ANNUAL MEET

Bert A. Gipple and Charles E. Freeman of Galesville Write Arnold Memorial

COUNTY BANKERS GATHER SOON
Bankers' Development Association Convention Will Close With Big Banquet

GALESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—On Tuesday evening, November 9, at Whitehall, the Trempealeau County Historical society will hold its annual meeting. This organization was formed some years ago by Judge H. A. Anderson and the late S. Richmond for the purpose of keeping alive the early history of this county and it now meets every year and presents an interesting program of history.

Probably the most interesting feature of this year's program is a biographical sketch and memorial of the late Alexander A. Arnold of Galesville. The article is written by Bert Gipple and Charles E. Freeman of Galesville.

Large amounts of money are changing hands in this vicinity lately in the sale of farms. Julius Ristow bought a 250 acre farm from W. H. McAdam for $20,000; the B. Beck farm was bought by Harvey Patterson for $12,000; and Sidney Clark sold his farm to Frank Hagg for $12,000.

Band Entertained
Mrs. W. S. Wadleigh entertained the members of the Galesville Concert band on Friday evening, the occasion being Mr. Wadleigh's birthday. The evening was spent in all sorts of games and music and all present voted Mrs. Wadleigh as good a hostess as Mr. Wadleigh is a director.

NO STOMACH PAIN, GAS, INDIGESTION IN FIVE MINUTES

"Pape's Diapepsin" is the only real stomach regulator known.

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back. It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach regulator in the world.

Two Ideas of the Picnic

The Hindu term for picnic is said to be, by literal translation, "fool's feast." But the Anglo-Indian who likes to take his best girl and a basket of indigestible edibles upon an arduous journey to a distant place, to eat delightfully a much worse dinner than he might have at home, has more imagination and a keener zest of life than the native who assumes an air of superiority.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Bibbley Wah Rode on The Apple Cart.

"ANY one can have a Bibbley Wah story. Who wants it?" daddy invited, taking the children on his lap.

"I—!" cried Jack and Evelyn.
"After Uncle Ben's men had picked and packed in barrels all the best apples that grew in the beautiful orchard halfway down the hill to the Frenchies' house, there were still bushels and bushels left that were not quite good enough to eat, but still too good to leave on the ground. So Uncle Ben had them gathered into a big cart, and, after Anne had spiced and canned and pickled and baked and made into excellent pies all that everybody on the farm could possibly stuff, the rest were carried off to a big mill, where their juice was squeezed out into delicious sweet cider to drink and later to make into vinegar."

"Could Anne also make apple tarts?" asked Evelyn.
"Yes, indeed," said daddy. "All the fall she used to bring apple tarts over to the children at 3 o'clock, when they played by the brook. Well, one day Bibbley Wah and the boys were helping the men pick up cider apples."

"Did Uncle Ben pay them 5 cents an hour?" asked Jack.
"Yes, and, because every apple in sight could be used this time, Bibbley Wah really helped. She worked so hard that she got very tired, and when little children get tired, you know, they nearly always cry. 'Bibbley Wah! I want to see my ma-ma-ma!' Bobbie mocked her when she wept tears. But Uncle Ben made him stop and said that Bibbley Wah had picked up so many apples that she might have a nice ride home on top of the apple cart."

"This was a great treat and pleased Bibbley Wah very much, because the boys had to walk up the hill. Now, at the back of the cart was an end board that fastened with a small iron peg and kept the apples from tumbling out. The way to dump the load of apples was to pull out the peg. About halfway up the hill Bibbley Wah discovered the interesting peg. 'What a nice big nail!' said she, tugging at it. Out it came, the end board dropped, the apples went rolling down the hill and old Ned went on walking up the hill. 'You lost some apples!' cried Bibbley Wah to the driver, when she was tired of watching the pretty yellow and red balls roll down the hill."

"What did the driver do?" cried Jack and Evelyn.
"Got off the cart and made the kiddies help pick up about six bushels of apples," said daddy.

The children giggled. "You get two kisses tonight, daddy," said Evelyn, giving him a big squeeze, "because we liked that story."

A SPLENDID INFLUENCE

Only when a majority of citizens would live the spirit of a law were there no such law does law assume importance, and then only as control of the unregenerate minority pending its regeneration.

Law is not civilization, but a rule of conduct which seeks to enforce the aims of civilization. Other forces—the influences which make men and women interpret life nobly—must be at work, back of law, for nobility is personal.

And so the teacher is greater than the law-giver, and every community is concerned with the problem of good teaching.

When the State Normal school established its course of entertainment a number of years ago a great, new influence came to La Crosse. There were brought here in music, art, literature, and religion, things that inspire and ennoble. To these were added the offerings of the Music Study club, a splendid contribution. To it all there has been an uplift, from it has come aspiration.

We are glad now to acknowledge another enterprise which affords still more that builds and enriches society. We have reference to the course for which the young men of the Baptist church are working so earnestly. They offer some exceptional programs, and all are excellent, the price a modest nominality.

It isn't the most important thing in the world that these courses prove financial successes, but it is vastly important that people take advantage of the pleasure and cultivation which they afford. Not in a single instance, we believe, has one of these organizations closed a season with a surplus of any consequences. They do not aim at that; they are not money-making enterprises. Indeed, they come cleverly near offering something for nothing, and the something is, next to peace with the Creator, the greatest thing in the world.

CUTTING BOTH WAYS

The "conference committee on national preparedness" suggests that pastors of militarist leanings take for the text of Thanksgiving sermons the following verse:

Then whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet and taketh not warning; if the sword come, and take him away, his blood shall be upon his own head.

The verse is from the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel. Since the "conference committee" sees in it scriptural backing for its propaganda, there may be no objection if the context is also put into the record.

The three preceding verses of the chapter run:

Again the word of the Lord came unto me saying:

"Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their watchman:

"If when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet, and warn the people;

"Then, etc."

It will be observed that the trumpet call for which the parable bespeaks obedience comes from a watchman duly chosen by the people. We find in the passage no endorsement of the warnings of self-appointed prophets.

THE "Y. W." WORTH WHILE TO THE VERY BEST GIRLS

It is one of the limitations of our civilization that more or less strict economy may be imposed upon the nicest girl in the world. To her there comes the problem of wholesome food in pleasant surroundings at modest prices, and of a room at reasonable rent in proper and convenient surroundings.

The Y. W. C. A. home is short of rooms, but up to its capacity it rents them at seventy-five cents per week. It has no rival, for the money, and girls who are able to find lodging there are most fortunate.

The Y. W. C. A. cafeteria offers excellent meals for modest prices. A suitable luncheon can be secured for nine cents, and one ample for a vigorous appetite at from fifteen to seventeen cents.

The home means far more than these material things, however. The girl who has no residence here makes considerable capital by associating herself with the home. The employer feels more confidence in hiring a girl who patronizes the "Y. W." than one who does not; the new girl acquaintances are surer of her, the interested young man who is thinking of a wife and a home of his own finds ground for assurance in a girl's voluntary choice of the Y. W. C. A. home.

No doubt there are hundreds of girls in La Crosse who have never been attracted to the "Y. W." or who have shied at it because they held a popular misconception of its character, who would be better off, who would find richer enjoyment and greater opportunities, were they to avail themselves of its advantages.

Appropriate Name

Aunt Liza's former mistress was talking to her one morning, when suddenly she discovered a little pickaninny standing shyly behind his mother's skirts. "Is this your little boy, Aunt Liza?" she asked.

"Yes, miss, dat's Prescription."

"Goodness, what a funny name. Auntie, for a child? How in the world did you happen to call him that?"

"Ah simply calls him dat becuz Ah has sech hard work gettin' him filled."—The Re-Saw.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Going On Right Now

They laid him on his manly back and tied him to the railroad track.

And told him it was most time for the train.

He sobbed aloud in keenest grief, because it was his firm belief

He'd never see his fond mamma again.

They rescued him in nick of time and then to cover up the crime

They dropped him in a well and let him soak.

They took him in an hour or two and pounded him all black and blue.

And hanged him from a bridge just for a joke.

And then in manner coarse and rude, they took his clothes and left him nude.

And made him run for home with all his might.

But caught him e'er he had gone far and daubed him up with luke-warm tar.

And feathers until he was a lurid sight.

They made him climb a dozen trees and shiver in the autumn breeze.

And rode him on a rail for half an hour.

He barked his skins and skinned his nose and lost nine pounds of adipose.

While climbing up the bellrope in the tower.

They made him dance on red-hot bricks and sing a song and do some tricks.

And climb a greased pole sixty-five feet tall.

The reason is not hard to see. The secret of it was that he

Was joining a fraternity, that's all.

He's Off Again

The art of prevarication, vulgarly known as lying, is when once well cultivated, a most difficult accomplishment to drop.

It was so that a young fellow who was pushed into a business, to keep him out of mischief, had found it.

His employer also had found it out, and he was severely admonishing him as to the evils that resulted from such wickedness as lying.

"It is very bad," he was concluding.

"Sir," said the young man indignantly. "I would have you know that I am a gentleman."

"Pon my word, I never knew such a chap! There you go again."

Trained Flies

A salesman who had been working a small midwestern town wished to catch a train which passed through it about half an hour before noon.

And asked the village landlord to serve him before the regular "dinner" hour. Soon he was admitted to the dining room, where a fairly good meal was spread before him. But flies were so numerous that the landlord had to stand behind his chair and shoo them with a napkin.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the salesman, "I never saw so many flies."

"Flies?" retorted the landlord, scornfully. "Shucks! this ain't nothing. If you want to see flies, just wait till I ring the bell for dinner. They're all out in the stable now."

Never Be Too Positive

A man who had evidently tarried too long at a booze emporium, entered the drug store and asked the clerk if he would "stick a postage stamp on his letter," producing a much crumpled letter which had probably been given him by his wife some days before to mail.

The obliging clerk accommodated him and received profuse thanks, which he tried to suppress with the usual assurance of "That's all right, etc."

Mr. Man, however, wanting double assurance, asked: "Will this letter go to Denver tonight?" and on the clerk's statement of "Sure, certainly," replied, "Like H—ll 'twill, it's addressed to Philadelphia."

The Re-Saw.

Drawn From the Source

In the early morn the fresh city boarder met the rustic dairymaid carrying a couple of foaming milk pails.

"Ah, good morning, my dear," he said patronizingly. "How is the milk-"

"Tain't made at all, sir," she said. "We take it from th' cows."

Mad, But Not Crazy?

Wife (sentimental) "Egbert, what would you do if I were to die?"

Egbert—"I should go mad, my dear."

Wife—"Would you marry again?"

Egbert—"Well, I don't think I should go as mad as that."

"Why," said the teacher, "does a bride invariably desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?" As no one answered, she explained, "White," said she, "stands for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous occasion of a woman's life."

A small boy queried, "Why do the men all wear black?"—The Re-Saw.

ECZEMA COVERED CHILDREN'S HEADS

Broke Out in Blisters. So Bad Could Hardly Bear To Wash Heads. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Children Were Healed.

Gilechrist, Mich.—"My two children were covered all over their heads with sore eruption which I was told was eczema. It broke out in blisters; a patch as large as a quarter would break out and on top of the sore was a scale. I cut the hair as near down to the head as I could when the first eruption broke out. The eruption was so bad I could hardly bear to wash their heads and there was not a spot as large as a pin on the head that was not broken out."

"I shampooed their hair, then rubbed the Cuticura Ointment on. After I had used the sample I bought one box of Ointment and one cake of Soap and I had not used all of them when the eruption had dried up and my children were healed." (Signed) Mrs. John Rolston, Aug. 1, 1914.

KAZAN
By James Oliver Curwood
Author of The Danger Trail, The Honor of The Big Snows, Philip Steele, Etc.
Copyright 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Not until Broken Tooth discovered that the water was receding from the houses did he take alarm. He was thrown into a panic, and very soon every beaver in the colony was tearing excitedly about the pond. They swam swiftly from shore to shore, paying no attention to the dead-line now. Broken Tooth and the older workmen made for the dam, and with a snarling cry the otter plunged down among them and out like a flash from the creek above the pond. Swiftly the water continued to fall and as it fell the excitement of the beavers increased. They forgot Kazan and Gray Wolf.

Several of the younger members of the colony drew themselves ashore on the windfall side of the pond, and whining softly Kazan was about to slip back through the willows when one of the older beavers waddled up through the deepening mud close on his ambush. In two leaps Kazan was upon him, with Gray Wolf a leap behind him. The short, fierce struggle in the mud was seen by the other beavers and they crossed swiftly to the opposite side of the pond. The water had receded to a half of its greatest width before Broken Tooth and his workmen discovered the breach in the wall of the dam. The work of repair was begun at once. For this work sticks and brush of considerable size were necessary, and to reach this material the beavers were compelled to drag their heavy lodges through the ten or fifteen yards of soft mud left by the falling water. Peril of fang no longer kept them back. Instinct told them that they were fighting for their existence—that if the embankment were not filled up and the water kept in the pond they would very soon be completely exposed to their enemies. It was a day of slaughter for Gray Wolf and Kazan. They killed two more beavers in the mud close to the willows. Then they crossed the creek below the dam and cut off three beavers in the depression behind the windfall. There was no escape for these three. They were torn into pieces. Farther up the creek Kazan caught a young beaver and killed it.

Late in the afternoon the slaughter ended. Broken Tooth and his courageous engineers had at last repaired the breach, and the water in the pond began to rise.

Half a mile up the creek the big otter was squatted on a log basking in the last glow of the setting sun. Tomorrow he would go and do over again his work of destruction. That was his method. For him it was play.

But that strange and unseen arbiter of the forests called O-ee-ki, "the Spirit," by those who speak the wild tongue, looked down at last with mercy upon Broken Tooth and his death-stricken tribe. For in that last glow of sunset Kazan and Gray Wolf slipped stealthily up the creek—to find the otter basking half asleep on the log.

The day's work, a full stomach, and the pool of warm sunlight in which he lay had all combined to make the otter sleepy. He was as motionless as the log on which he had stretched himself. He was big and gray and old. For ten years he had lived to prove his cunning superior to that of man. Vainly traps had been set for him. Willy trappers had built narrow sluice-ways of rock and tree in small streams for him, but the old otter had foiled their cunning and escaped the steel jaws waiting at the lower end of each sluice. The trail he left in soft mud told of his size. A few trappers had seen him. His soft pelt would long ago have found its way to London. Paris or Berlin had it not been for his cunning. He was fit for a princess, a duke or an emperor. For ten years he had lived and escaped the demands of the rich.

But this was summer. No trapper would have killed him now, for his pelt was worthless. Nature and instinct both told him this. At this season he did not dread man, for there was no man to dread. So he lay asleep on the log, oblivious to everything but the comfort of sleep and the warmth of the sun.

Soft-footed, searching still for signs of the furry enemies who had invaded their domain, Kazan slipped along the creek. Gray Wolf ran close at his shoulder. They made no sound, and the wind was in their favor—bringing scents toward them. It

I brought the otter smell. To Kazan and Gray Wolf it was the scent of a water animal, rank and fishy, and they took it for the beaver. They advanced still more cautiously. Then Kazan saw the big otter asleep on the log and he gave the warning to Gray Wolf. She stopped, standing with her head thrown up, while Kazan made his stealthy advance. The otter stirred uneasily. It was growing dusk. The golden pool of sunlight had faded away. Back in the darkening timber an owl greeted night with its first low call. The otter breathed deeply. His whiskered muzzle twitched. He was awakening—stirring—when Kazan leaped upon him. Face to face, in fair fight, the old otter could have given a good account of himself. But there was no chance now. The wild instinct had for the first time in his life become his deadliest enemy. It was not man now—but O-ee-ki, "the Spirit," that had laid its hand upon him. And from the Spirit there was no escape. Kazan's fangs sank into his soft jugular. Perhaps he died without knowing what it was that had leaped upon him. For he died—quickly, and Kazan and Gray Wolf went on their way, hunting still for enemies to slaughter, and not knowing that in the otter they had killed the one ally who would have driven the beavers from their swamp home.

The days that followed grew more and more hopeless for Kazan and Gray Wolf. With the otter gone Broken Tooth and his tribe held the winning hand. Each day the water backed a little farther into the depression surrounding the windfall. By the middle of July only a narrow strip of land connected the windfall hummock with the dry land of the swamp. In deep water the beavers now worked unmolested. Inch by inch the water rose, until there came the day when it began to overflow the connecting strip. For the last time Kazan and Gray Wolf passed from their windfall home and traveled up the stream between the two ridges. The creek held a new meaning for them now and as they traveled they sniffed its odors and listened to its sounds with an interest they had never known before. It was an interesting mingled a little with fear, for something in the manner in which the beavers had beaten them reminded Kazan and Gray Wolf of man. And that night, when in the radiance of the big white moon they came within scent of the beaver colony that Broken Tooth had left, they turned quickly northward into the plains. Thus had brave old Broken Tooth taught them to respect the flesh and blood and handiwork of his tribe.

FUN AND MUSIC ON NEW BILL AT THE LA CROSSE

Winsch and Poore Have a Modern Singing Act and There's a Funny Black-face Man as Well

Solid fun of a refined but highly entertaining variety will be the chief drawing card of the La Crosse theater's five act bill of vaudeville commencing with tomorrow's matinee and running the first half of the week. Although fun will have the letter of the bill, a musical number which would be hard to imitate is announced as the program's feature. Louis J. Winsch and Josephine Poore will present the musical number, offering the latest song hits of the nation in a two act musical sketch, "No Trespassing." Winsch and Poore do not overburden their performance with song, either, for they have an abundance of witty sayings accompanying their act. The opening scene of the number is laid in a crab-apple orchard. Miss Poore plays the part of the seminary girl, "Daisy Seitzer," while Winsch has that of "Robert Lemon," "the fellow who chanced by." Their second scene is that of the seminary's exterior. The fun will be compiled in two big acts. Fred Rogers, blackface comedian, otherwise known as "Go-Get-Em-Rogers," is scheduled to create a ton of laughs in "The Yaphank Guardsmen." Blackface vaudeville numbers have been found to be either "good" or "bad." There is no happy medium in the game, and Rogers is greatly in the former division.

Nuess and Eldrid will go "50-50" with Rogers in the laugh producing part of the program. They come known as "The Continental Comedians," and with a twentieth-story recommendation.

Joe Kennedy, "graduate of skating," will entertain with a novel roller skating act on a floor of his own.

Math Brothers will offer bits of dancing, singing and instrumental music as a balancing medium for the program.

ENGLAND EXEMPTS WHEAT SHIPS FROM USE OF MILITARY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The exemption of wheat vessels from requisition for military purposes is to be made by England, the state department was advised today.

This is intended to stimulate the shipment of American wheat to the allies. The American consulate at London was informed that the British board of trade will exempt the vessels loading in this country before December 17.

The order applies only to British vessels, and it is expected to increase shipments between now and the end of the year.

Genius appears to be nothing more than associative faculty of high order.

High order of associative faculty belongs to the group of phenomena by individuals whose cell protoplasm has been sensitized beyond the mean degree. This sensitization is due to microbe influence, no matter whether from direct toxic impression made by bacterial products, from liberated endotoxins or from proteolytic end-result poisons.

BEATEN GRIDIRON HEROES OF SPARTA MOURNED TODAY

WILLIAM MILLER DEAD AFTER FALL

Workman Suddenly Falls from Roof and Is Found Dead; Heart Disease Thought Cause

SPARTA, Wis., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—All Sparta is in mourning today as a result of the La Crosse-Sparta football game yesterday. The defeat, which was expected by Sparta generally, was the worst ever administered to the crimson and gold. Never before has a Sparta team gone down before an enemy to the tune of sixty-two to nothing until they met La Crosse's terrible onslaught yesterday. The game was called at about 2:40 and was opened by Sparta kicking to La Crosse. With only two slight setbacks, La Crosse marched steadily down the field and ten minutes after the game opened, she claimed her first touchdown.

Sparta came in with the real Spartan feeling in the last quarter and held their opponents to one count which was made in the first part of the quarter. R. W. Archibald of Pennsylvania university umpired and G. W. Garey of Winona refereed. About twenty-five La Crosse cars were down beside the large delegation which came by way of train.

Since 1904, La Crosse and Sparta have played fifteen games of football. Of these La Crosse has won but four, while Sparta won ten. The second game in 1904 ended 0 to 0.

Heart Disease Fatal While working on the roof of a dwelling under way of construction in Bush Prairie Thursday, William Miller, son-in-law of John Mohering, suddenly fell to the ground. When fellow workmen reached him he was dead. Miller had climbed down to get a drink of water. He had just returned to the roof when he fell. It is believed that heart disease caused his death.

CHICKENS 'STEWED' TO MAKE THEM LAY IN BETTER FORM

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 6.—Professors at the Wisconsin agricultural college were today teaching the students how to get chickens stewed.

They didn't order champagne, highballs or any other fancy drinks, but just plain Scotch whiskey. And that did the work nicely.

The theory has been advanced that if a hen is intoxicated it will lay three eggs a day, and several of the students are working out an experiment to see whether or not the theory is true.

No Doubt About It.

Many Babies Suffer.

Too many babies do not get started right because patience and the proper care was not given the hopeful mother. Experienced mothers now urge the use of Mother's Friend, to be had at any drug store, because they know from experience that this old, dependable remedy, applied externally, is absolutely harmless and is very beneficial. It soothes the muscles, cords and ligaments and relieves the undue tension, giving great physical relief from stubborn pains. Its influence in the skin and network of nerves cause the muscles to expand naturally. Thousands of women have successfully used it for two generations.

He Wanted the Job.

When Morris was seven years old his mother was one day reading to him about the kings of England. After she had closed the book he remained silent and thoughtful for some minutes, then asked, "Mother, do they have kings in this country?" Another silence and then very earnestly and gravely the little fellow said, "I'm sorry about that, mother, for I was just thinking I would like to be it."—Christian Register.

EVIDENCE HEARD TO SETTLE LIEN IN NELSON CASE

Arguments Today Aftermath of Court Denunciation of "Ambulance Chasers" Last Week

The controversy between James Thompson of La Crosse and William R. Duxbury of Minneapolis, over the Nelson damage suit, which caused Judge Higbee to utter a denunciation of "ambulance chasers" recently, occupied circuit court this afternoon, when Judge Higbee listened to evidence to establish the amount of Attorney Thompson's lien in the case.

In a brief statement which prefaced the arguments this afternoon, the court declared itself to be "in a position to protect its attorneys."

When the case came into court last week, Judge Higbee promised that in settling the amount due Mr. Thompson for services in the case, he would take care that the award should not be "nominal."

The case has attracted much attention among local members of the bar, many of whom were in court to listen to the proceedings this afternoon.

CONSTITUTION OF NORMAL LEAGUE ADOPTED FRIDAY

Self-government Association of Men Will Get Under Way with Election of Officers

One more step was taken in the organization of the self-government association at the normal school yesterday when a constitution was adopted. Only one more step remains before the organization will be in full working order, that of the election of officers which will be held sometime next week. The name provided is the Men's League of the La Crosse State Normal school, and it has for its purpose, as stated, the promotion of the welfare of the men in the institution. A similar organization is being suggested for the women. The league will hold only four regular meetings throughout the school year, one at the beginning and one at the end of each semester, but special meetings can be called by the president at any time. As a working unit for the organization, there is created in a very important clause in the constitution an executive committee to manage the activities of the league. This committee is to consist of the three officers of the league and two members elected at large; it has power to appoint all committees necessary, act as a check on the secretary-treasurer, and supplies the practical working unit of the league.

The Eclectic Debating society and the Sapphonian Literary society both met at the normal school last night, but the Eclectians didn't debate and the Sapphonians didn't discuss Tension or Longfellow. The men's and women's organizations held a joint meeting last night to enjoy a short program and dancing. The program consisted of two readings by Miss Grace Wells of the faculty and Miss Ethel Mable, a declaration by Mr. Leland Mahoney, and impromptu talks by Miss Bessie Hutchison and Dr. F. E. Nurse of the faculty, and Alois Engelhard.

MAYOR IS HEAD OF STORE INNOVATION

You Will Wait on Yourself in Groceries His Company Will Open Next Week

PLAN ALSO TO START SHOE STORE

Clerkless Plan Will Be Put Into Effect in the Boot Shop as Well as the Others

With the opening of two of the chain of four retail stores of the Nuidea Basket Market company on Monday, Mayor A. A. Bentley, E. G. Bentley and C. A. Dittman, Monday will inaugurate the most novel scheme of purchasing groceries, meats and shoes in the northwest. The two stores opening Monday are situated at 537 Main street, and at 806 South Third street, and will deal exclusively in groceries and meats. A large stock of shoes is now being assembled for another of the stores at 213 North Third street. The fourth store will sell groceries and will be situated at 1301 South Tenth street.

All the stores will be clerkless. Waiting on yourself is the chief feature of the establishments. By doing away with clerks in the four stores, the owners expect to cut down expenses and sell at costs considerably below those in stores employing clerks. Persons purchasing on a five per cent discount, although quick deliveries of goods will also be made.

All articles selling for the same price in the grocery departments will be placed on shelves together, and signs bearing the prices will be displayed prominently. Market baskets of various sizes will be sold at nominal costs. As the purchaser enters the store, everything will be in plain sight and within reaching distance from the floor. The purchaser desiring a certain article will be enabled to find it easily. It will then be placed in the market basket along with other articles purchased, and the entire bill paid to the cashier upon departure.

Sausage Factory
The South Third street store will be mainly used as a sausage factory, although meats will be sold there also.

When opened in the near future, the North Third street store, which will deal exclusively in boots and shoes of all sorts, will be one of the most complete in the city. Following the idea of the other stores, customers will wait on themselves. Samples of all shoes carried in stock will be on display. As the kind of shoe desired is selected, the purchaser then is directed to the section of the store where his shoes are to be found. The store owners maintain that they will save twenty-five per cent with the plan of having no salesmen aside from the man in charge, and that this profit will be divided with the consumer.

PREPAREDNESS IS ISSUE IN FIGHT LAUNCHED TODAY

Bryan Opens On the Defense Program of the President and Battle Starts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—What promised to be one of the greatest political battles in American history was fairly launched today. With the declaration of war by Former Secretary of State Bryan on President Wilson's national defense program, the clear cut issue was before the country. One month from today congress reconvenes to write into law the nation's decision, for or against preparedness.

Tammany Pleased
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Tammany leaders today were highly pleased with conference held here this week during the visit of President Wilson to New York. Friends of Roger Sullivan of Chicago also made it known that they were looking forward to co-operation in the coming campaign with the national administration.

REPETITION OF UTE UPRISING IS THREATENED

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 6.—Thirty armed Indians, barricaded in old government buildings on the White Rock reservation, today threatened another Ute uprising similar to the one last spring that brought General Hugh L. Scott out here before quiet was restored. The Indians are defiant and threaten to attack the jail at Vernal unless Utes imprisoned there are released immediately. The country around Vernal is mostly covered with sage brush and cut up by many gullies, offering a natural battlefield for the Indians.</

LIVE SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

LA CROSSE DOWNS SPARTA BY BIGGEST SCORE EVER MADE IN A LIKE CONTEST

OLD-FASHIONED GAME IS PLAYED BY BOTH TEAMS

Forward. Passing. Almost Banished from Game Although Sparta Tried It
a Few Times

LA CROSSE BACKFIELD WONDER

Men Behind the Line Gain
at Will with Blatter and Kulcinski Leading in the Line

La Crosse high school, by the biggest score ever run up against their ancient rivals, yesterday afternoon defeated Sparta on Sparta field. The final score was 62 to 0, the count being from nine touchdowns and eight resultant goals. The former record was 36 to 7 made by La Crosse in 1912.

The score was the biggest ever made by either of the teams against the other. It came as a decided surprise, for followers of neither of the squads expected a win by more than one or two touchdowns. La Crosse went into the game with the odds with them as high as 2 and 1
but there was little coin to cover
the advance.

When, after about three minutes of play, Sparta held on their two-yard line, the crowd had visions of a scrappy battle, as of former years.
That one bit of defense by the Spartans, however, was about the last.
For Sparta soon afterwards went over and started the scoring, which at the end of the first half mounted to 41.

The game was featured by substantial, though not long gains, by the lack of fumbles
and by the absence of forward passing. The Red and Black did not try a single pass and of Sparta's seven attempts only three worked. None of them were good for more than five yards. There was little brilliant individual work, the longest run of the game being only for 30 yards. The La Crosse backfield showed great improvement in their interference, and Blatter and Kulcinski, with their tackle and end around plays, were always good for from ten to twenty-five yards.

The weather was ideal and a crowd of about eight hundred was on hand. Immediately after the whistle blew the La Crosse delegation went wild. Sparta kicked and the Red and Black rushed the ball to the Spartan two-yard line in nine plays. Sparta braced, however, a fumble cost four yards and Roellig was unable to go over. Sparta kicked from their one-yard line and then the slaughter began. From then on, for three quarters, La Crosse was not held a single time. Sparta was able to make first down but once and then by a hairs breadth.
The play was entirely of the hard,
straight, off-tackle kind and Sparta was swept off her feet. But two passes were tried, both by Sparta.
They were incomplete. Three subs were in for La Crosse and Horne's men often punted on the first down
in the third period.

La Crosse started with a rush in the fourth quarter and in one minute Kulcinski had gone around end for the ninth touchdown. This was the last, however. The Spartans, with Hoffman getting off some very pretzy gains, began to pep up. The last half of the fourth quarter was really Sparta's game. The ball was secured on a kick-off and immediately
four first downs were made in quick succession, taking the ball to the La Crosse 18-yard line. A fumble gave La Crosse the ball and Roellig kicked out of danger. Sparta was unable to make another first down but

by running back punts a good distance, they were able to get in position for two tries at dropkicks, both of which were blocked.

Hoffman a Star
For Sparta, Hoffman was easily the star. With a strong line and a little interference, it would have been almost impossible to stop him.
"Red" McConnell and Gould also played strong games for the Red and yellow. Alex Nicol, Sparta's captain and the bolster of their line, injured
the leg which he fractured last year,
and was taken out soon after the game started.

Kulcinski, Blatter and Bott starred for La Crosse although they could have very little choice over any others on the team. Layman was kicked in the back in the first quarter and it was necessary to take him out for the rest of the game.
Feinberg was kicked in the head
during the fourth period and was sent groggy for a while. His removal ruined the offence of the Horne machine and from then on Sparta had a little the better of the argument.

The play:

Sparta Wins Toss
Sparta won the toss and chose to defend the east goal. McConnell kicked to Kulcinski, who returned twenty yards. Layman, Bott, Roellig, Blatter and Kulcinski carried the ball to the Sparta two yard line
where the Red and Yellow held for downs. Sparta kicked to Bott, who returned to the 25-yard line. Bott 3, Blatter 8, Kulcinski 8, Roellig 2, Layman 2. Bott went over from the four-yard line. Roellig kicked goal.
Layman kicked to Kelly. A Nicol taken out. McConnell kicked to Feinberg. Blatter made fourteen around right end. Layman hurt and taken out. Roellig taking his place and Spettel going in at full. Bott made fifteen around left end. Spettel four through right guard and Bott
went over from three-yard line.
Roellig kicked goal. La Crosse kicked to McConnell, who immediately punted back. Spettel and Bott made some pretty gains and the period
ended with the ball in La Crosse's possession on Sparta's twenty-yard line. Score: La Crosse 14, Sparta 0.

Second Quarter
Spettel made four, Blatter eight,
and Kulcinski went over from the eight yard line. Roellig kicked goal. La Crosse kicked and forced Sparta to punt from their own ten-yard line. Bott made fifteen, Blatter six, and Roellig went twenty-six yards to the goal posts around right
end. Roellig kicked goal. Again
La Crosse kicked and forced Sparta to punt. Bott 18, Gerard 8, Roellig 4, Bott 3, Blatter 15. Kulcinski scored from fifteen yard line.
Roellig kicked goal. La Crosse kicked
and recovered ball on fumble.
Blatter made twenty and Kulcinski scored from four yard line. Roellig kicked goal. Sparta here showed a little fight and the La Crosse gains became less. Half ended with La Crosse ball on Sparta 25-yard
line. Score: La Crosse 41, Sparta 0.

Third Quarter
Sparta kicked off to Endres. Roellig punted on first down. Hackner intercepted a pass and Blatter scored for twenty yards. Roellig kicked goal. The rest of the period was much slower. Blatter finally scoring after a fumble. Roellig missed this goal. Score: La Crosse 55; Sparta 0.

Fourth Period
The beginning of the fourth period saw Kulcinski come around end
again and after some pretty dodging, scored from twenty yards. Roellig kicked goal. La Crosse kicked to Hoffman. With four plunges, Mc-Connell made first down. Hoffman went thirty around left end. Mc-Connell plunged for ten. Hoffman went eight and pass worked for five bringing the ball to La Crosse's 18 yard line. Fumble. La Crosse ball.
Roellig punted to Hoffman who returned ten yards. Drop kick blocked, and Sparta recovered. Swennes intercepted pass. Roellig punted to Hoffman who returned fifteen. Drop

NOTES OF THE GAME

Number Six on the Milwaukee
road carried two football teams yesterday. La Crosse went to Sparta and Carleton college of Minnesota were enroute to Beloit, where they were to play today.

The two aggregations exchanged
yells before La Crosse entrained here. C-A-R-L-E-T-O-N vied with the Varsity locomotive set to words suitable to La Crosse.

The West Salem band played a war song before taking the train at West Salem for the game. The jitney box at the high school worked well.

The band had an opponent at Sparta but not a rival.

If the Sparta cheerleader's megaphone could possibly have had any effect on the home team, Sparta must have won. The hooting machine was six feet long and it took two men to hold it.

Upwards of fifty automobile parties were up from La Crosse.

PRINCETON HOPES REST ON OUTCOME OF HARVARD GAME

The Tiger Has Not Beaten
Harvard Since 1911; Betting Today Shade for Princeton

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—The best Princeton football team of a decade was to meet Harvard in Palmer stadium this afternoon, in what was expected to prove to be one of the best gridiron tussles of the year. On it rested Tiger hopes for a championship and the breaking of the spell which the Crimson has held for three consecutive years. Not since 1911, when Sandy White grabbed a straying ball and raced through a heavily populated field, had a Harvard eleven bowed to the Tigers.

The betting was even, with a slight shade, if any, to Princeton.
Harvard adherents were slightly inclined to demand odds, but they failed to garner many this forenoon.
There was plenty of Princeton cash
at even money, however.

MAROONS OPPOSE BASEBALL RULING

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Chicago university students went on record with students of Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin and Ohio state as favoring abolishment of the summer baseball rule. The Maroon students voted 332 to 278 against the rule.

kick blocked. Sparta recovered.

LITTLE STIRRING ON GRIDIRONS IN THE MIDDLE WEST

Chicago Took On Haskell
Indians While Indiana
and Iowa Played Ohio
and Purdue

BY J. P. YODER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Excepting for the Michigan-Cornell game at Ann Arbor today, the west had little to offer that was of more than local interest. Three conference teams, Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin
did not play.

Chicago was to take on the Haskell Indians at Stag field. Indiana visited Ohio State and the Buckeyes were favored, by virtue of past performances of both teams. Iowa played Purdue at Lafayette. These were the only conference games today. Northwestern took on Missouri at Evanston and had a chance to win.

The Michigan Aggies ended their season against Marquette at East Lansing and were expected to win.
Nebraska, the only western team
with a real record of decisively earned victories, excepting for the twenty-
to nineteen win from Notre Dame, entertained Nebraska Wesleyan at Lincoln.

MICHIGAN STAKES SEASON'S SUCCESS AGAINST CORNELL

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6.—
This was do or die day for Yost's
Michigan team.
They were to be sent against Cornell this afternoon for the biggest clash of the season on Ferry field.
Defeat for the Maize and Blue will make this the most disastrous season
for Michigan in the past fifteen years.

Cornell will enter the scrap a 4 to 1 favorite. The Red eleven stopped over-night at Detroit and staged a light work-out at the Detroit Country club before completing the final stage of the journey to Ann Arbor.

CELEBRATE HOME COMING

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Nov. 6.—
Illinois college celebrated "Home Coming day" yesterday by beating their old rivals Milliken, 13 to 0, and winning the football championship
of the Illinois Intercollegiate association.

SHEVLIN IN CHARGE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—
Tom Shevlin will be in complete charge of the eleven which faces
Brown this afternoon. Frank Hin-key, formerly head coach, will not be here. He will go to Princeton to look over the Tigers and Harvard.

SPOTLIGHTS

"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER"

Ask almost any playgoer what play of the last ten years he remembers most affectionately and he will answer "Potash and Perlmutter."
Since the two famous characters took New York by storm two years ago, they have practically become incorporated into contemporary history. Their wit and their wisdom, their joys and their sorrows,
their quarrels and their peace-makings are so thoroughly human that one must be hardened beyond redemption not to feel a response to their emotions.

The story of "Potash and Perlmutter" deals with the fortunes of "Abe"
and "Mawruss" who risk their all in order to save from a Russian prison
a young man who has fled that country to avoid persecution. The play teams with laughs but there are also many sweet love passages and touches of pathos that appeal to the heart and gives to the comedy its lasting hold on the audience.

"Potash and Perlmutter" will return to the La Crosse theater for an engagement of one night, Thursday, Nov. 11. Seats will be placed on sale Tuesday morning.

CYRIL MAUDE

A performance, which will be sure to captivate every patron of the La Crosse theater, will be that of the splendid actor, Cyril Maude, who makes his first appearance in this city, in his tremendously successful play "Grumpy." This is a theatrical event that has been eagerly anticipated by our theatergoers for the past year. The local engagement follows Mr. Maude's second presentation of "Grumpy" on Broadway. Although for many years a distinguished figure of the English stage, Mr.
Maude never came before the American public until two seasons ago,
when at Wallack's theater, in New York, he overnight made a reputation for skill in characterization that has served to make him as well known to the theatergoers of this country as he is to the amusement seeking people of London. "Grum-py" ran an entire season on Broadway, and then was done by Mr. Maude for the London season after which he returned to the United States, and last year presented the piece in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia. This is his first real road tour and everywhere his appearances are greeted with the utmost enthusiasm.
"Grumpy" is a play of unusual texture and while it is essentially a comedy, it has its thrilling moments
and strong touches of melodrama,
but there is never a tear, and the un-ravelling of its detective plot is done
in a quaintly humorous manner. Mr.
Maude's impersonation of Andrew Bullivant, or "Grumpy," as this fusy
old barrister, whose blustering
tempers, little tenderness and whim-sicalities of age, is a character portrayal that becomes a stage classic,
and deserves to rank with the "Rip
Van Winkle" of Jefferson and Irving's
"Matthias."

SKIN GRAFTED ON BOY

RACINE, Wis., Nov. 6.—Clarence Cape, a junior at the Racine high school, who was burned by an explosion in the laboratory two weeks ago, submitted to the second operation in skin grafting on Friday at a local hospital. His younger brother furnished skin for forty-two patches. A third grafting will be necessary.

NEW MOVIE COMPANY FORMED

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 6.—The Al-
co Moving Picture company of Milwaukee, organized to operate picture shows, on Friday filed articles of incorporation. The capital stock is $25,000. The incorporators are Edward V. Cochrane, G. A. Rawson
and Peter J. Muszinski.

NEW STATION NAMED CERMA

RIVER FALLS, Wis., Nov. 6.—A new station has been established on the local branch of the Omaha
line, between this place and Ellsworth. It is known as Cerma, and is for the accommodation of the people of the Bohemian settlement.

—the MOST POWERFUL car for its weight ever built

You want Power—and this is the car that gives you Power—this 1916 Studebaker Six.

It is the most powerful car for its weight ever built, and we have yet to find a task, hill, sand or mud, that it doesn't plow thro' with the same ease that it rolls along a city street.

The new motor is a marvel of design. It is larger than last year's motor—increased to 3 3/4 inches in bore. But many improvements have been made, following our study of the famous motors of Europe that make it even more powerful than this increase in size indicates.

It develops 50 horse power—power in abundance for that unexpected twist on the hill or that quick getaway in the crowded streets or that long, steady, mile-consuming speed on the roads.

The carburetor is set high on the left side of the motor, and with the intake enlarged and cut down to a few inches in length, the motor throats down to walking speed on high and picks up like a flash.

The crankshaft and the crankshaft bearings have been made much larger and every last trace of vibration has been done away with.

From every angle, this new Fifty H.P. Six is a wonder to drive. And we'd just like to have you come in and look it over and then take that ride in it, with your own hands on the wheel.

But you must come in at once. This is the first Six of its power, size and quality ever priced at less than $1400. There has been as much improvement in its quality as there has been in its motor. And at its price, it is the sensation of the season. Only on orders taken at once can we guarantee prompt deliveries. Get your order in early.

CLEVER DOGS TO HEAD SUNDAY BILL AT THE MAJESTIC
Zerth's Forty Pups with Smallest Trained Dogs on Stage Will Lead the Program

Dogs of every size and state of mind are to be the chief attraction of the Majestic's Sunday bill, which plays three shows tomorrow. The dogs are the property and pals of Zerth, society clown, and his charming assistant, Mlle. Zerth. They carry forty dogs with them, including the "reserves" which do not appear in the act, and in the list are the smallest performing canines in the world.

All of the animals are pedigreed, and many of them are ribbon-winners.

Miller and Moore, "those musical comedy boys," will present an act that is expected to be one of the hits of the bill. It is a singing and dancing specialty, with enough new stuff in the line of fun-making material to raise it above the average.

"Brady of Central Office" is the title of a thrilling one act play which will be presented in the middle of the bill. It is a story of a detective's adventures with the criminal world, enthralling and appealing in tone.

There is also a clean-cut juggling offering, staged by a pair from the entepodes, Martyn and Florence. They are fresh in the United States from India, Ceylon, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and Honolulu.

Singing and dialogue of the amusing sort will be offered by Moore and St. Claire, versatile entertainers.

And—Charlie Chaplin in one of his screaming farce comedies.

No such confidence exists for the prophet who attempts to forecast the result in Greece. There can be no doubt but that M. Venizelos is wholly right in declaring the present political crisis is a test of democracy against monarchism. The decision which the Greeks will probably be called upon to make, may have large consequences concerning the future development of their political institutions. Modern democracy in central and eastern Europe has never shown the tenacity of purpose that it has developed in the west. Democracy first rose to dominant influence in ancient Athens, but though M. Venizelos is ambitious to revive all the ancient glories of Greece it is questionable whether he can restore popular government to the full. Modern and ancient Athens are not the same.

When constipated or bilious give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

The Greeks have borrowed their monarchial ideals from Great Britain but King Constantine is safe in attempting constitutional evasions that would cost the king of England his throne. This is because the British people are far more jealous of their democratic privileges than are the Greeks. It would be predicted with certainty what the result would be in Great Britain if King George tried to

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLAR BLAZE AT TOMAH YESTERDAY

Janke Garage Burns to the Ground with Five Automobiles and Quantity of Machinery

FIRE'S ORIGIN IS UNKNOWN

Before Aid Comes Building Is Covered with Flames; Residence Is Damaged

TOMAH, Wis., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the Emil Janke garage and five automobiles late yesterday afternoon. The loss has been estimated at about $20,000. A frame dwelling occupied by Al Dickenson, standing next to the garage, was badly damaged by the intense heat. Several times the residence caught fire, but efforts of the fire department saved it.

Firemen had little chance to save the garage. Shortly after the alarm spread, the building was wrapped in flames. Fear was felt that gasoline in underground tanks would explode. Within thirty minutes the building was leveled to the ground.

Eight cars were stored in the building when the blaze started. Three were saved, but by the time these had been rushed into the street there was no opportunity to get the others out. The cars destroyed were owned by Mr. Janke, Mr. Glen Barthe, Mr. Helling and John Bettinger. The building also contained about $2,000 worth of machinery owned by Mr. Janke. Some insurance was carried on the place.

Women Meet
The Woman's Civic Improvement club held an interesting meeting Thursday afternoon. The Hon. John J. Esch was a guest of the club and gave an excellent address to the ladies. There were about fifty present, and after the regular business meeting Miss Mary Broadwell led the club in community music, which was followed by a charming vocal selection by Miss Charlotte Button. Mrs. J. P. Reinhard in a few well chosen words introduced Congressman Esch. He took as his subject "Safeguarding the Home." He spoke first of the influences within the home and then those without which are demoralizing. In the evening about twelve men had dinner with Congressman Esch at the Sherman hotel. Afterwards a social meeting of the Business Men's club was held in the club rooms. The club has a membership of 90 and nearly all were present. Mr. Esch addressed the members with a talk on "National Defense." A supper was served at 10:30.

Compensation Insurance Firms File Answer to Neal Brown's Ouster Petition

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—A complete denial of race discriminations for workmen's compensation insurance is contained in the petition, of the over twenty companies belonging to the Workmen's Compensation service bureau, which has just been filed with Insurance Commissioner M. ## CHURCH NEWS

Methodists Give Large Sum For Missions
Methodists of the north, just closing their year, contributed $2,600,000 to foreign missions, the largest sum in the history of American Methodism. The figures include both the regular foreign board receipts and the women's foreign work. Both, however, passed former records. The regular receipts of the general foreign board were $1,188,000, an increase of $18,000 over the preceding year, and of special receipts $512,000, an increase of $100,000. This increase includes war relief funds, besides some money given for property purchases. The total is $1,700,000, while the total for the women reaches $900,000.

Some indication of the growth of Methodist work in spite of war conditions is seen in the fact that these fields last year asked for $954,000. This year the same fields apply for $1,325,000 for regular work and at least $1,000,000 for extension and the purchase of new properties. Improved financial times, and everybody at work, are given as reasons why enthusiasts on these fields expect larger sums this year.

Methodist benevolent societies are this year meeting on the Pacific coast for the first time, save only that ten years ago one of them met in Seattle. The foreign society is just now in session in Los Angeles. The home society is to meet in Oakland, and the Freedman's Aid in Pasadena. Women interested in home missions met two or three weeks since in Seattle, and women working for foreign will meet a few days hence in Los Angeles. These agencies collect and distribute upwards of $6,000,000 a year.

Knights of Columbus To Raise $500,000

Knights of Columbus, forty-three New York councils, are just starting on a campaign to raise $500,000 with which to erect in their city a building that shall be both Catholic headquarters and home for Catholic charities. It is also to be a Catholic center for New York. Plans for raising the money were borrowed from the Y. M. C. A. $4,000,000 campaign. The association officials gladly extending the information and suggestions. Apart from the forty-three teams, Knights are giving entertainments of many kinds to add to the fund. The campaign is to terminate on December 31 and the hope is to have the building ready in one year.

Knights expect to provide for themselves one large and one small hall, and club rooms that will compete in some measure with the famous Catholic club. Dormitory features are to be provided if the whole sum is raised. The location talked of is along the line of the new Lexington subway, north of the Grand Central station and south of the new downtown subway on Fifty-ninth street. Knights of Columbus have a membership of 14,000 in New York. Their generosity toward the Catholic university at Washington is well known, although in that Knights of the whole country were involved.

RUMORS OF BREAK BETWEEN CARRANZA AND OBREGON GROW

Carranza's First Lieutenant in Agua Prieta Possibly to See Villa Followers

HE IS POPULAR WITH MEXICANS

"El Macho" Is Cheered by populace While Carranza Goes Without a Hand

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 6.—A split with Carranza was said today to be General Alvarez Obregon's reason for going to Agua Prieta, where he has 10,000 loyal followers.

Obregon may open negotiations with the defeated Villa forces. It was rumored, to unite against the recognized head of the present de facto government.

While passing through El Paso last night Obregon would make no statement regarding his standing with Carranza. The man who brought success to Carranza in the Mexican civil war brushed all such questions aside with the reply: "Mexico will be at peace soon."

The popularity of "El Macho" (the one armed man) as Mexicans now call Obregon, caused words between Carranza and Obregon on their recent tour of Mexico and resulted in Obregon leaving for Agua Prieta. In Saltillo, Torreon and other cities they visited together, the multitude acclaimed Obregon enthusiastically but there was hardly a cheer for Carranza.

General Serrano, Obregon's chief of staff, preceded El Macho to Agua Prieta and reported that General Plutarco Elias Calles and the garrison under him feel kindly toward Obregon in his feud with Carranza.

Villa Collects Tribute
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—General Villa, "like an angry bull dog," is moving southwest across Sonora and levying tribute from the country, while the Carranza generals are making tardy efforts to initiate an aggressive campaign against him, said telegrams received at the war department today from General Funston at Douglas, Ariz.

It was reported that General Urbalejo, with 1,800 Yaqui Indians, has left Nogales by rail for the south and that 2,600 cavalymen are marching via Cocostera for Imuris.

You cannot realize what a musical triumph Mr. Edison has achieved until you have actually heard the New Edison, with his wonderful diamond reproducer; he has made of the phonograph a real musical instrument. A tone that is true, life-like, human, natural. Just what music lovers have been waiting for. It opens a new era in music. Call and hear the New Edison.

KNIGHTS OF THE FIERY CROSS EXPOSED IN GRIFFITH'S SPECTACLE

Ghostly white, but more sure footed than death itself—flesh and blood ghosts of the moonlight night in a war-torn southland—the awful avenging K. K. K. swoops down upon the ravishing negro and grabs him up as a fishhawk its prey, whirling him away God knows where to a fate from which there is no escaping—this is one of the actual sights shown in Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," and the one of all others, perhaps, that has caused most of the violent outbursts of criticism of the work and which is the basis of the arguments in which the negroes have made it in nearly all the cities in which it has been shown. The fight upon the picture has taken such proportions now that it threatens to become a civic issue upon which Mayor Wallace G. Nye of Minneapolis will stand or fall. He has ordered the revocation of the license of the theater where "The Birth of a Nation" is showing, and a hot court fight is now in progress concerning his right to revoke licenses of theaters and other businesses which displease him.

In the K. K. K. scenes Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman" is revived with telling reality; practically all the remainder of the incredible living panorama (always, of course, giving due credit to the history of the United States, to the military experts who and the various authorities who were consulted as to the various scenes and episodes throughout) is D. W. Griffith's own creation.

Those readers of "The Clansman" will easily note Griffith's wonderful improvement over the original when "The Birth of a Nation" appears here at the Majestic for the week of November 14.

And they will also see brought to life before them all that led up to such a state of affairs, from the introduction of slavery in this country to the first shot on Sumter.

History has its skeletons in the closet the same as individuals and they are no worse off for being brought to light and shown up to the people. There are a number of them shown up to the white light of day in this work.
